

The program builds self-esteem and stresses the importance of staying in school and staying off drugs. ITEC offers afterschool tutoring to children, assistance in job searches, and requires parents to attend sessions to learn positive reinforcement techniques.

Mr. President, I hear a lot of talk about what we, as citizens of the United States, can do to have a positive impact on the next generation, the children of today. I offer Angalena Rhue as a shining example. She has taken what could have been a negative experience, her drug addiction, and turned it into something positive for the children of South Carolina. She will have an immeasurable impact on our society. Through her efforts more children will turn away from drugs and continue their education.

It gives me great pleasure to join the President of the United States in recognizing a fellow South Carolinian for being 1 of 18 volunteers awarded this prestigious honor for truly making a difference in this country.

Recently, the State in South Carolina's capital city, Columbia, recognized Angalena Rhue for her award. I ask unanimous consent that the article be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the article was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[From the State, Friday, Apr. 28, 1995]

CLINTON AWARDS SOUTH CAROLINA WOMAN FOR VOLUNTEER WORK

(By Charles Pope)

WASHINGTON.—Six years ago, Angalena Rhue of Summerville was addicted to crack cocaine, caught in a spiral that was dragging her downward.

Thursday, the 38-year-old Rhue was at the White House, receiving an award from President Clinton for not only turning her own life around, but the lives of hundreds of low-income kids in the Charleston area.

Rhue was one of 18 Americans to be awarded the President's Service Award, the nation's highest honor for those who "engage in voluntary community service addressing unmet human needs."

Rhue was selected from 3,000 nominees for founding ITEC—Infiltrate the Enemy Camp. ITEC provides tutoring and assistance to children and parents living in low-income housing projects. What began as a small effort in the Haven Oaks apartments in Summerville after Rhue kicked drugs, has now expanded to four locations in three counties, serving more than 400 children from age 4 through 19.

"It's exciting, it's overwhelming. I thought I was going to faint," said an effervescent Rhue after receiving her silver medallion in a sunsplashed Rose Garden ceremony.

"When we first see these kids, there's a sense of helplessness, and apathy. But now these kids are soaring and there's no holding them back."

In the hourlong ceremony, Clinton praised the volunteers whose work becomes even more important in a time of national crisis.

"Just over a week ago we were reminded that there are those who want to see our nation torn apart," Clinton said. "But amid the grief and the destruction we have also seen how quickly the overwhelming majority of Americans come together to help each other to rebuild and to make this country stronger."

"Today we'll hear stories of ordinary Americans doing extraordinary things."

"They repair our parks and keep our young people out of gangs. They come from all corners of the nation. They are diverse in age and background. Yet they are united by something larger than all of us—the simple desire to fulfill the promise of American life," the President said before awarding the 18 medals.

Rhue's home-grown program is based on restoring self-esteem to children who have few role models and little parental guidance. Her programs require the children to read each day, help them with their homework, provide help finding jobs and reinforce the need to stay in school and avoid drugs.

"I want to save the whole world from drugs," said Rhue, whose job is made easier by her natural affinity to children, her endless energy and her personal experiences.

Rhue also requires parents to attend at least four sessions a year so they can learn how to reinforce the gains their children are making. She also combats verbal abuse that parents direct to their children and instructs parents how to work with teachers so that children get the most out of school.

Rhue's crusade started when she realized she could help and when children started showing up at her doorstep. The manager of her apartment complex soon offered the club house and before the first year ended, 37 kids were coming each day.

Relying on her own instincts, a talent for attracting donations, volunteers and help from such quarters as Clemson Extension Service and the College of Charleston, her programs have spread to low-income housing projects in North Charleston, the City of Charleston and Moncks Corner. Those four centers serve more than 400 children. Officials in Orangeburg, Columbia and other municipalities in South Carolina have asked her about the program.

And on Thursday, Hillary Clinton told Rhue she would like to come see the program in person.

When Rhue awakes today, she will be able to celebrate her presidential award, and more importantly, an anniversary. Six years ago today, she weaned herself from cocaine.

REPORT OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA'S 1995 SUPPLEMENTAL BUDGET AND RESCISSIONS OF AUTHORITY REQUEST ACT OF 1995—MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT—PM 48

The PRESIDING OFFICER laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, together with an accompanying report; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

To the Congress of the United States:

In accordance with section 446 of the District of Columbia Self-Government and Governmental Reorganization Act, I am transmitting the District of Columbia's 1995 Supplemental Budget and Rescissions of Authority Request Act of 1995. This transmittal does not represent an endorsement of the contents of the District's budget.

WILLIAM J. CLINTON.

THE WHITE HOUSE, May 12, 1995.

ENROLLED BILL PRESENTED

The Secretary of the Senate reported that on May 12, 1995, she had presented to the President of the United States, the following enrolled bill:

S. 244. An act to further the goals of the Paperwork Reduction Act to have Federal agencies become more responsible and publicly accountable for reducing the burden of Federal paperwork on the public, and for other purposes.

EXECUTIVE AND OTHER COMMUNICATIONS

The following communications were laid before the Senate, together with accompanying papers, reports, and documents, which were referred as indicated:

EC-911. A communication from the Chairman of the Council of the District of Columbia, transmitting, pursuant to law, copies of DC Act 11-40, adopted by the Council on April 4, 1995; to the Committee on Governmental Affairs.

EC-912. A communication from the Chairman of the Council of the District of Columbia, transmitting, pursuant to law, copies of DC Act 11-41, adopted by the Council on April 4, 1995; to the Committee on Governmental Affairs.

EC-913. A communication from the Chairman of the Council of the District of Columbia, transmitting, pursuant to law, copies of DC Act 11-39, adopted by the Council on April 4, 1995; to the Committee on Governmental Affairs.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES

The following reports of committees were submitted:

By Mrs. KASSEBAUM, from the Committee on Labor and Human Resources, with amendments:

S. 141. A bill to repeal the Davis-Bacon Act of 1931 to provide new job opportunities, effect significant cost savings on Federal construction contracts, promote small business participation in Federal contracting, reduce unnecessary paperwork and reporting requirements, and for other purposes (Rept. No. 104-80).

INTRODUCTION OF BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

The following bills and joint resolutions were introduced, read the first and second times by unanimous consent, and referred as indicated:

By Mr. D'AMATO (for himself and Mr. DODD):

S. 799. A bill to amend the Federal Deposit Insurance Act to exclude certain bank products from the definition of a deposit; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

By Mr. D'AMATO (for himself and Mr. DODD):

S. 799. A bill to amend the Federal Deposit Insurance Act to exclude certain bank products from the definition of a deposit; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

THE BANK INSURANCE FUND AND DEPOSITOR PROTECTION ACT OF 1995

• Mr. D'AMATO. Mr. President, today I am introducing the Bank Insurance